Annual Candle Lighting Ceremony in December
Our Annual Candle Lighting Ceremony will be Sunday, Dec. 10, 2017, at Crossroads Community Church, 13730 Hwy 155 South, Tyler. The service begins at 6:30 p.m. This year, canned food for the food pantry at our host church, as well as new toys, will be collected at the Candle Lighting.

We are selling 12” poinsettia’s in memory of our children and pre-order is required.
At the end of the ceremony, you will be able to take your poinsettia home. Please mail a check for $15 along with child’s name to P.O. Box 9714, Tyler, Texas 75711.

This is a great way to meet and get to know the members of The Compassionate Friends. Getting involved will likely help you as well as the other members! Everyone is needed and welcomed! Please consider bringing a finger food of your choice. We need everything from sandwiches and chips to sweets and drinks. Your contribution will be appreciated and enjoyed on this special evening.

If you would like to help with the Candle Lighting set up, Saturday, the day before the event, take down, and anything in between, please call the TCF line at 903-422-0358. Thank you!

IMPORTANT NOTICE: We have a NEW meeting location! Please join us at 17555 Hwy. 155 S. (off Loop 49), Flint, TX 75762. We hope to see you at our next meeting!
Welcome

We extend a warm welcome to those who attended their first TCF meeting last month.

We deeply regret the circumstances that brought you to our TCF Chapter. The Compassionate Friends is a mutual assistance, not-for-profit, self-help organization that offers support and understanding to families who have experienced the death of a child. You are cordially invited to attend our monthly meeting (held the third Monday of the month). The meeting is open to everyone and free of charge. You are free to talk, cry or to sit in silence; we respect the individuality of mourning. Comments shared in the meetings remain confidential.

Our chapter is operated entirely by volunteers dedicated to furthering the work of TCF. Your voluntary, tax deductible donations honor your loved one(s) in a meaningful way by enabling us to print and mail this newsletter and meet other expenses involved in reaching out to other grieving families (100% of funds are used for this outreach). Donations, along with the name of the person being honored, may be sent to:

To Our New Members

Coming to your first meeting is the hardest thing to do. But, you have nothing to lose and much to gain. Try not to judge your first meeting as to whether or not TCF will work for you. The second, third or fourth meeting might be the time you will find the right person—or just the right words spoken that will help you in your grief work.

To Our Old Members

We need your encouragement and support. You are the string that ties our group together and the glue that makes it stick. Each meeting we have new parents. Think back—what would it have been like for you if there had not been any “olds” to welcome you, share your grief and encourage you? It was from them you heard, “Your pain will not always be this bad; it really does get softer.”

Grief Resources

Note: Some resources are based on individual opinion and experience and are not officially endorsed by the organization. The hope is that you may find a grief resource helpful to you and your family. We will continue to build on our resources column. Please let us know of any of your personal recommendations. Thank you.

Change and Challenge

As I look back over the past six years since our son died, I realize how much I have changed.

When we talk about grieving, we often forget to mention that we grieve, too, for the person we were before our child died.

We might have been energetic and fun loving, but now are serious and absorbed.

Our friends and family miss the “old us” too, and their comments show it:

“Don’t you think it’s time to return to normal?” or, “You don’t laugh as much as you used to.”

They are grieving for the person who will never be the same again.

Like the caterpillar who shrouds itself in a cocoon, we shroud ourselves in grief when our child dies.

We wonder, our families wonder, our friends wonder - when will they come out of it? Will they make it through the long sleep? What hues will show when they emerge?

If you’ve ever watched a butterfly struggle from the safety of a cocoon, you’ll know that the change is not quick or easy - but worth the effort!

We begin to mark our struggle from the cocoon of grief when we begin to like the “new us.”

When our priorities become different and people become more important than things - when we grasp a hand that reaches and reach in turn to pull another from his own cocoon, when we embrace the change and turn the change into a challenge.

Then we can proudly say, “I have survived against overwhelming odds. Even though my child’s death is not worth the change in and of itself, the changes and challenges give me hope that I can feel fulfilled again. I can love again.”

A Letter From Heaven

To my dearest family, some things I’d like to say—but first of all, to let you know, that I arrived okay. I’m writing this from heaven. Here I dwell with God above. Here, there’s no more tears of sadness; here is just eternal love. Please do not be unhappy just because I am out of sight. Remember that I am with you every morning, noon and night. That day I had to leave you when my life on earth was through, God picked me up and hugged me and He said, “I welcome you.” It’s good to have you back again; you were missed while you were gone. As for your dearest family, they’ll be here later on. I need you here badly; you’re a part of my plan. There’s so much that we have to do, to help our mortal man.

God gave me a list of things that he wished for me to do. And foremost on the list, was to watch and care for you. And when you lie in bed at night the day’s chores put to flight. God and I are closer than you—indeed, I am by the middle of the night.

When you think of my life on earth and all those loving years, because you are only human, they are bound to bring you tears. But one thing is for certain, though my life on earth is o’er, I’m closer to you now, than I ever was before.

There are many rocky roads ahead of you and many hills to climb, but together we can do it by taking one day at a time. It was always my philosophy and I’d like it for your too—that as you give unto the world, the world will give to you.

If you can help somebody who’s in sorrow and pain, then you can say to God at night—“My day was not in vain.” And now I am contented—that my life has been worthwhile, knowing as I passed along the way, I made somebody smile.

So if you meet somebody who is sad and feeling low, Just lend a hand to pick him up, as on your way you go. When you’re walking down the street and you’ve got me on your mind; I’m walking in your footsteps, only half a step behind.

And when it’s time for you to go—from that body to be free, remember you’re not going—you’re coming here to me.

When A Grandchild Dies

The grandparent relationship is a very special one. When a grandchild dies, grandparents grieve too. They grieve not only for their grandchild, but also share in the grief of the bereaved parents. For some grandparents, the hardest part is a sense of helplessness they feel for the pain that the child’s parents suffer. But their own grief may also be very intense. When a child dies both the parents and grandparents lose part of their future.

As with parents, a bereaved grandparent often grieves differently than does the grandfather and this difference may create a strain between them. This does not mean that one is right and the other is wrong. There is not one right way to grieve. Knowing what usually happens in grief may help bereaved grandparents as they grieve, as they try to understand their child’s grief, and as healing slowly occurs for all.

Grief is said to have several stages. However, most bereaved grandparents do not grieve step by step, for grief is disorderly and irrational. At the time of the death of a loved one, there is a protective numbness. Even though they know that the loved one has died, they can’t accept the reality of it. They may find themselves talking to and of the grandchild as if the child were still alive. They may see the dead child, only to realize that it is another child. But they now know, all too well, that death does not only visit someone else, it is now with them, too, are vulnerable! The ache in the chest can become their nearly constant companion.

As denial lessens, grandparents feel much hurt and frustration. This could lead to anger directed towards others and inward. It may be focused on the spouse and even the dead child. Their own grief-stricken children, whose pain they share, may become the object of their anger. They may be very angry at God; they are often angry with themselves! Grief, real or imagined, is always there, with their recurring “What if...?” “Why didn’t I...?” As they try to resolve their guilt feelings, anger often returns to full force.

Grandparents may experience all this twice, once for the grandchild and then for the parents who have their own guilt, anger, and pain, and who appear inconsolable. Because grandparents love their children, they often are torn between the love and the fear of loving too much, lest they then lose another grandchild or child. Grief of a previous death may return. Often, as in the multiple losses they may occur from an accident, the grandparents are grieving no only the loss of a grandchild but also the death of a child in the same tragedy. Grief may occur because they live on, while the young ones died.

Letter from Shaw Copilow

Hi, I’m searching for a mom and dad, would you like to be them. If you do you will call me Shaw Oliver Copilow? You will raise me the best you know how. We will have many happy times. I will be everything you ever wanted in a son. I will be happy and bright, sensitive and good looking. I will skateboard, surf, play soccer and ultimate Frisbee. I’ll be a good athlete, a good student, a good writer and a good artist. I will graduate from college. I will have a sister whom I will adore. I’ll have many friends and relationships and a special girlfriend. I’ll be a good kid and I will love you both.

We will travel and play together and we will learn from each other. We will share many memories which will last forever, but, I need to tell you before you decide, that I will only be around for 27 years.

That I have other commitments.

You will weep and you will be sad for a very long time and, you will learn to go on without me. You will have the memories but your life will change forever.

So its your choice and, I hope you chose to have me.

Sidney Copilow, Shaw’s Dad, TCF Medford, OR

The Death of the Young

From Spiritual Life Cannot be Measured, by Tolstoy

People ask: “Why do children or young people die, when they have lived so little?” How do you know that they have lived so little? This crude measure of yours is time, but life is not measured in time. This is just the same as to say, “Why is this saying, this poem, this picture, this piece of music so short, who was it not broken off and not drawn out to the size or of the longest speech or piece of music, the largest picture?”

As the measure of length is inapplicable to the meaning (or greatness) of productions of wisdom or poetry, so—even more evidently—it is inapplicable to life.

“How do you know what inner growth this soul accomplished in its short span, and what influence it had on others?”

Birthday Thoughts

A child is one of life’s precious gifts to parents. Through a child’s eyes we discover life’s magic and the promise of what lies ahead as they grow from an infant and through the childhood years into adulthood—and then suddenly one day, they’re gone.

Because of them we understand how strong the power of love is and how full of joy a parent’s life can be.

July 3rd will mark our daughter Susan’s 48th birthday, and as we celebrate her life, we realize that regardless of how many birth-
